RISK FACTORS

The value of the investment can go down as well as up. One way to gauge risk is to look at how much an investment's returns change over time which is called "volatility". Investments with higher volatility will have returns that change more over time. Since inception, RESCO MIC has been generating a steady and consistent return of 8% per annum, paid monthly.

Like most other investments such as stocks or mutual funds, this investment is not guaranteed by CDIC (Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation).

INCOME TAX TREATMENT

You will have to pay income tax on any money you earned from an investment. How much you need to pay depends on the tax rates where you live and whether or not you hold investment in a registered plan, such as Registered Retirement Savings Plan (RRSP) or a Tax-Free Savings Account (TFSA). Keep in mind that if you hold your investment in a non-registered account, distributions are included in your taxable income, whether you choose to receive them in cash or have them reinvested. Distributions are considered as interest income and you will receive a T5 at the end of the year.

MARKET OVERVIEW

The downward trend in home prices appears to have stabilized

The average price of a Toronto home was virtually unchanged from the previous month in October as the market appeared to stabilize amid a steep decline in new listings. The latest data from the Toronto Region Real Estate Board (TRREB) shows that the average resale price across all property types was $1,089,428 in October, compared to $1,086,762 in September. In fact, October marks the third consecutive month with little or no change in TRREB's benchmark index. It should also be noted that prices were down only 5.7% compared to this time last year. The persistent lack of inventory explains in part why the downward trend in home prices experienced earlier this year appears to have at least stabilized.
